DINER REBEKAH LODGE

One-Half Of The Net Proceeds Will Go To Relief Of San Francisco Sufferers

THURSDAY EVENING'S PERFORMANCE INDEED ONE OF NOTE---IT WILL BE REPEATED THIS EVENING

"Princess Bonnie" made her bow to a Portsmouth audience on Thursday evening and with an éclat that at once put her in popular favor. The audience was a large one and embraced the best elements of Portsmouth and vicinity, called together to witness an opera of choicest merits, musical and otherwise. The composer of its words and music was Willard Spencer, and the director was Carl C. Akley.

The argument of the opera is as follows:

Act I, Near Bar Harbor

From the wreck of a Spanish ship near Bar Harbor off the coast of Maine, a little girl is rescued by Captain Tarpaullin and adopted by him and Auntie Crabbe. The child gives a name which sounds like Bonabelle, and she becomes known by that name among the villagers. On her sixteenth birthday she is presented with a miniature which was taken from her neck when rescued and which subsequently leads to her identification by her uncle Pomposa and the Count to whom she was betrothed in infancy. Bonnie while growing up among the plain fisher folk falls in love with Roy Sterling. His grief at separation leads him to resolve to follow Bonnie to Spain, where she is taken by Pomposa when identification becomes complete. Act first concludes with her departure,—a touching song followed by a glorious tribute to America by Bonnie and her friends.

Act II, The Courtyard of Pomposa's Palace in Spain, Time, Present

This gives glimpses of Spanish life and finds Bonnie shut up in the castle of Pomposa, who resolves that she shall marry the Count.

Her American friends bribe their way into the castle, are carried thither disguised as wax figures, purchased in America by Pomposa. A conspiracy against the King is discovered in which Count Falsetti is implicated. Pomposa sees his error, directs reparation for the injury done to American citizens and "All's well that ends well."

The cast for the Portsmouth presentation was superior and as follows: Miss Edith J. Ellis of Exeter, soprano, who has appeared before the Grafton Club in concert, took the important part of "Princess Bonnie," an adopted daughter of Capt. Tarpaullin. During the evening Miss Ellis was given two bouquets, one of white carnations and ferns, and one of bride's maids roses.

Miss Jessie C. Burpee of the same town, contralto, impersonated "Kitty Clover," a summer girl, captain of the canoe club. In the quintet, a bouquet was accorded her.

Dr. H. P. Chase, also of Exeter, was Shrimp, the champion canoist and village Jack of all trades. He assumed his part in exemplary manner.

All three of the above appeared in that town in the same opera and in

Rand, Constance Noyes, Frances Newton, Dorothy Kelly, Bernice Klumpp, Helen Evans, Dorothy Bell, Rebecca Trueman, Dorothy Pollard, Mary Broderick, Avis Varrell, Viola Merrill, Gladys Young and Mary Kelly. Pink and green arches were carried.

Its soloists were Barbara Flanagan and Myrle Smith.

Thanks is due to the versatile abilities of Miss Julia D. Moses, who was the instructress for both the above.

Other features were the six Canoeists as follows: Emma Clark, Gertrude Bogart, Emma Pinnard, Marion White, Edith Bogart and Ethel Woodward.

Also the Spanish students had equally popular favor and depicted by Arthur Gardner, C. H. Lamson, Curtis Primmerman and Nathaniel Pierce.

During the first act, the three boxes were occupied by the dancers.

Hoyle and Parker's orchestra furnished music.

It is unnecessary to say that all parts, whether in specialties or otherwise, were remarkably well taken and the members received much applause for really fine work.

It was at once seen that the large audience was delighted, and many therein will attend the second and concluding presentation this evening of "Princess Bonnie" and her coterie of devoted attendants.

The gratitude of the patronage is due to Fannie A. Gardiner Rebekah Lodge of Portsmouth for the introduction of the musical opera to this city, and who notwithstanding the heavy expense attending it, will devote half of the net proceeds of each night to the suffering and destitute in California. All who can do so should go this evening and thus aid the worthy object.

Rye, Greenland, Exeter, Hampton, Newington, New Castle, Elliot and York were generously represented in last evening's audience.

WOOD ALL RIGHT

Battle With The Moros Proved Him To Be So

The Herald has received the following brief but graphic description of the great fight between Americans and Moros on the island of Jolo last March, written by a man who received his information at first hand. Some incidents are mentioned of which the dispatches at the time told nothing. The opinion expressed that Gen. Wood is the right man in the right place will be shared by most readers.

"The Americans have just had a hand to hand fight with the Moros at Jolo," writes The Herald's correspondent. "Col. Duncan was in command and Gen. Wood and Gen. Bliss were on the field.

"The Americans climbed a hill 2500 feet high where the Moros had a strong fort inside of which were 1000 men.

"There were some sailors off a small gunboat who did very fine work and they were recommended for medals of honor by Gen. Wood. Two sailors were killed. One sailor fought with one arm shot off and the other broken. Wood, Bliss and all the soldiers admitted that the blue-jackets were brave men.

"One constabulary captain was killed, four army officers badly wounded and twenty-one soldiers were killed. The Americans killed all the Moros, 1157 in number. Gen. Wood gave orders to take no prisoners.

"The Americans had a terrible fight, as the Moros were firing on them as they climbed the hill. They had a tort built of lime clay, forty feet thick and bamboo poles with a gun in every pole. Our men made a fine fight and got every bird.

"Wood is all right out here. He stands for no bluffs. If we had more Woods things would be all right. Wood was where he ought to have been, not at his desk."

REMNANT SOCIAL PROVED VERY ENJOYABLE

Delbert E. Gilchrist Finds A Valuable Prize At Sea

COSSIP OF A DAY COLLECTED BY OUR CORRESPONDENT

Kittery, April 27.

A very pleasant evening was passed at the remnant social given by the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society on Thursday at the Second Christian Church. Following is the program.

Piano solo, Mrs. Peckham
Reading, Miss Lucy Howe
Vocal solo, Rev. E. H. Macy
Reading, Miss Ruth Philbrick
Piano solo, Mrs. Peckham
Reading, Miss Minnie Eldredge
Vocal solo, Rev. E. H. Macy
Reading of will, Mr. Macy

The last number was very amusing.

Rev. William Wentworth, son of Rev. B. C. Wentworth, presiding elder of the Portland district, will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Church at North Kittery on Sunday.

A regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. John R. Wentworth on Wednesday afternoon. John Perkins passed Thursday in Boston.

Col. Mark F. Wentworth Camp, Sons of Veterans, will go to Sanford, Me., on Saturday to visit the lodge there.

Charles Farwell was in Boston Thursday on business.

W. P. Huclin passed Fast day in Boston.

Mrs. Homer Philbrick and daughter Irene of Salem, Mass., who have been visiting friends here, have returned home.

Many people from Kittery saw "Princess Bonnie" at Music Hall, Portsmouth, on Thursday evening and others will see the repeated performance tonight.

The game between the baseball teams of the Austin and Kittery Point grammar schools, which failed to come off as expected on Fast day, will be played at Gerrish's Field on Saturday.

A regular meeting of York Rebekah Lodge will be held at Grange Hall on Saturday evening. Several candidates will be initiated.

Rhetorical exercises were held at Trape Academy this morning.

The benefit dance for the class of '06 at Trape Academy, which was given at Wentworth Hall on Wednesday evening was a great success.

Kittery Point

Five hundred cords of wood owned by Valentine Matthews of Dover, cut last year on Gerrish Island, have been purchased by the Fishe Brick Company of Dover Point. The wood will be transported from Chauncey's Creek to the brick plant by the barge News-Letter of Exeter, the capacity of which is thirty cords.

Delbert E. Gilchrist again comes into prominence as the fortunate finder of two "gangs" of cod nets, which he picked up outside on Thursday in a badly tangled condition, they having been carried from their positions by the recent storm. This is a valuable prize. The combined efforts of Gilchrist and John Amee were needed to get the heavy nets into Gilchrist's boat.

A Dutch spread was given by the ladies of the Freewill Baptist Church on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Caspar Achorn left on Thursday for a visit to Lynn, Mass.

Rev. Herbert W. Cummings of Wilnot Flat, N. H., was to preach at the Freewill Baptist Church on Sunday, but was obliged to cancel the engagement.

The fine thirteen-ton fishing sloop Olympia has been brought by her captain, Charles Williams, with the exception of a share retained by George T. Vaughan of Portsmouth.

Many Summer cottages are being put in readiness for occupancy.

Thomas H. Palmer of Portsmouth was in town on Thursday.

A mast of the wrecked schooner Sallie B., was picked up and towed into York Thursday night by V. E. Crowell and M. W. Lawry, two Kittery Point fishermen.

JUDGE FELLOWS DEAD

End Comes to Prominent Manchester Man

Judge Joseph W. Fellows of Manchester died on Thursday after a short illness. A chronic trouble, aggravated by a cold, was the cause of death.

He was a native of Andover, this state, and was a man of unusual ability, holding many responsible positions.

CITY CAST BREAD ON WATERS YEARS AGO

Now in Its Own Need Help Is Speedily Given

STORY OF GENEROSITY TO THE PEOPLE OF SACRAMENTO

The following story of the noble behavior of the people of San Francisco years ago, from the pen of a Portsmouth writer, is gladly given space in The Herald:

"Cast thy bread upon the waters
On the waters of life's sea
And tho' perchance the days be many,
At last it will return to thee."

Thus wrote our Portsmouth poet, Albert Loughton.

The above beautiful lines are brought to my mind by the dreadful calamity that has befallen the city of San Francisco and the immediate and unprecedented outpouring of human sympathy for those who are suffering therefrom. There was a time, many years ago, when San Francisco cast her bread upon the waters and now, after many days, it is returned to her.

I refer to the great Sacramento flood, which took place, as nearly as I can remember, in the year 1862. It may have been a year sooner or later, but that is immaterial at this time.

The city of Sacramento, situated about 125 miles from San Francisco, was flooded by the American River, the people escaping to the upper stories of the buildings and other high places.

There was but small loss of life, but the water was from ten to twenty feet deep all over the city. Many of the houses were capsized or floated away. The news of the disaster was telegraphed to San Francisco, where I was living. Immediately the fire alarm was sounded to call out the people, who were informed of the flood. They were requested to prepare cooked food of any kind and have it ready for the wagons that would go through every street to collect the food and take it to the

FREE to the Sick

A remarkable offer made to the sick at Portsmouth and vicinity for his Spring visit only, By

Dr. Barbrick

BOSTON'S MASTER SPECIALIST,

— WILL BE AT —

THE KEARSARGE HOUSE

Two days only, Friday and Saturday

April 27th and 28th.

A MONTH'S TREATMENT FREE

To all persons calling on him and taking a course of treatment during this visit, Dr. Barbrick will guarantee to give, during the course, one month's treatment, medicines included absolutely free of charge. Let there be no misunderstanding. This positively means that no matter what the cost of treatment may be, no fee will be charged or accepted for the Free Month.

Why The Free Month Is Given

Dr. Barbrick's reasons for giving the Free Month are as follows: He takes this method of advertising his Boston Institute, one of the finest and best equipped Private Sanitariums in New England. He wishes to place within the reach of all the wonderful benefits of the New Cure. The Free Month will enable many who could not otherwise start the course to now take the treatment and get cured. Thus hundreds of sick and suffering will receive the benefits of the New Cure where only tens were cured previously. Again Dr. Barbrick wishes to impress on the minds of the sick that delays are dangerous; that the Spring and Summer months are the months to treat and cure Chronic Diseases and that more can be done in one month now than in three months in the fall and winter. Therefore, to induce those who need it to begin a course of treatment now, at once, that they may receive the greatest benefits from it in the shortest possible time, as well as to help those who are unable to pay the full fees, the Free Month is given.

Remarkable Diagnosis Of Disease and Wonderful "X-Ray" Examinations Free To The Sick.

Dr. Barbrick will have with him his wonderful X-RAY and Electric examination with the perfected X-RAY when required, absolutely free of charge to all who will call on him during this visit.

By the use of his Phonendoscope to distinguish the sounds of the body, his Radio-Chemic substances to test the secretion, his electrically lighted instruments, his X-Ray and the perfected Magneto-Chemic Skioscope to see the organs of the body, together with his other wonderful instruments, it may be possible for Dr. Barbrick to positively determine the presence of disease in any portion of the human body. This absolutely perfect method of examination is at your service without a penny to pay if you call on him at the Kearsarge house Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28.

Don't Wait

THE SICK MULTITUDES CROWD HIS OFFICES from morning until night, and if you would avoid disappointment you should call early. Dr. Barbrick makes regular visits to Portsmouth from time to time to personally attend to his many patients who are unable to visit his Boston Institute.

INSURANCE RATES WILL TAKE A JUMP

Western Managers Decide On Increase To Affect Country

Chicago, April 26.—There will be a general advance in fire insurance rates in the business centres of all cities of the United States in the near future to enable the companies to recoup in a measure their San Francisco losses.

A meeting of all western managers was held in Chicago yesterday to discuss the situation. The government committee of the West in relation, the large legislative body of the West, decided that, in the face of present conditions, an advance must be made. Eastern officials had advised their western men to prepare for the increase, and the meeting approved the plan.

Company officials meeting in the East decided that the advance should go into effect simultaneously over the country. To that end they asked the western union to send a committee of five to New York to attend a general meeting to determine the nature and plan of action. A similar committee will attend from the South.

It is stated that the western union will see to it that adequate rates are charged on classes that are now considered unprofitable and that charges for defects in risks will be insisted upon emphatically.

The New Cure

The old-fashioned shipboard method of treating Chronic Diseases with their guesswork diagnosis, their drastic and poisonous drugs, their harsh treatments and dangerous operations have passed away. The modern method of treatment, Magnopathy, with its certainty of diagnosis, its mild application of Nature's forces and remedies, its system of cure without cutting operations and harsh treatments has come in its place. This system of cure originated and developed by Dr. Barbrick, is peculiar to itself and is essentially and radically different from, as it is superior to, all other methods.

Diseases Cured

CATARH, ASTHMA, CONSUMPTION, and all diseases of the head, nose, throat, lungs and chest cured.

DEAFNESS, BLINDNESS, and diseases of the eye and ear cured.

DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, and all diseases of the stomach and bowels cured.

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, jaundice and all liver troubles cured.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE, DIABETES, and all diseases of the kidneys and bladder cured.

PILES AND RECTAL DISEASES cured without the knife or detention from business.

NERVOUS DISEASES, EPILEPSY, and all nervous disorders, except insanity cured.

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, and all painful affections cured.

CANCERS AND ALL MALIGNANT GROWTHS cured without the knife.

TUMORS AND ALL ENLARGEMENTS and Swellings cured without surgical operations.

SCROFULA and all sores, ulcers and blood troubles cured.

ECZEMA, PSORIASIS and all eruptions, pimples and skin diseases cured.

DEFORMITIES, SPINAL CURVATURES, Hip Joint Diseases, Club Foot, Knock Knee, Still Births, etc. cured by a natural gift and bloodless method.

DISEASES OF WOMEN—Weakness, Prolapse, Tumors, Sterility, Barrenness and all female troubles cured without surgical operations, harsh treatment, pessaries or supporters.

DISEASES AND WEAKNESS OF MEN—Varicocele and stricture cured without surgical operations and all nervous and blood troubles cured without potash, mercury or poisonous drugs.

Selected these officers: President, James C. Piper; Vice President, Albert D. Baker; Secretary, George L. Barbrick; Treasurer, C. H. Jewell; Directors, Richard M. Seaman, Stratham, Charles H. Brackett, Groenland, and Dana W. Baker, Exeter.

Three consecutive days of snow squalls in the latter part of April are something almost without precedent.

BATTLESHIP TEXAS

Nearly Foundered In The Raging Northeaster

CAME INTO BOSTON YESTERDAY WITH HOLE IN BOW

Boston, April 26.—With a foot of water in her berth deck her marine quarters flooded and a big hole in her bow, the battleship Texas, U. S. N., for three days fought a northeaster on her way from Charleston, S. C., to the Boston Navy Yard.

On Thursday, April 19, the Texas at sea between Key West and Charleston, came across a derelict three masted schooner, which she blew up. In passing through the debris she stove a hole in her bow, which was patched up.

On her arrival at Charleston she was ordered with all speed to Boston, to go into dry dock for repairs.

It was on the way from Charleston that the ship encountered a severe northeaster, combined with a heavy sea, which weakened the temporary repairs and allowed the water to enter the berth deck.

Immediately at her arrival at the navy yard today she was ordered into the dock.

FRISCO'S FATE MEANS FAMINE TO HONOLULU

San Francisco, April 26.—The steamer Alameda arrived yesterday from Honolulu, having on board cargo of sugar, which will probably be distributed by the relief committee.

G. H. Unhosen, a real estate dealer, was a passenger on the Alameda from Honolulu. He says that the wildest excitement prevailed when the news that proclaimed San Francisco's doom was flashed over the cables. Unhosen tells the following story:

"The news of the destruction of San Francisco reached Honolulu shortly after 7 o'clock on the morning of the disaster.

"When the first disaster came in at the cable office the news spread the wildfire throughout the city, and within a few minutes thousands of persons had gathered around the cable office."

"When it became apparent to the merchants that trade relations with San Francisco could be closed temporarily, they immediately tried to communicate with Portland to obtain goods. When I left there they were still unable to get a line to Portland."

"Instead of being of assistance to us in our hour of need the people of Honolulu will find that when San Francisco is in trouble the entire group of Hawaiian islands must also suffer. Unless provisions reach Honolulu within a short time the residents there will soon be in dire straits."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

Washington, April 26.—The first sack of mail from San Francisco got to the local postoffice today. The postmark of San Francisco was dated April 19. Some of the pieces of mail were unstamped. These were stamped at the personal expense of the officials of the city delivery department of the Washington post office, in order that they might be delivered without delay to the anxious ones to whom they were directed here.

Boston, April 26.—Prompted only by a desire to improve the morals of the Chinese community, James Ware the principal witness against the alleged Chinese policy players, arrested in the past two weeks at a hotel and at the trial before United States Commissioner Hayes, this morning that he had gathered evidence to prove the accused Chinese guilty of dishonestness.

Washington, April 26.—President Roosevelt has sent a special message to Congress asking for appropriation for public works in the Mars Island navy yard and for the construction of buildings in the Fort Mason reservation. In all, the President asks for $1,500,000, which will furnish work for a large number of unemployed.

Boston, April 26.—Vincenzo Conzatti and Ludovico Guglielmo, two members of the Creation band, which arrived on the Concord liner Saxenda today, were held by the immigration authorities. Both men are suffering with trachoma, a disease of the eye, and will probably be deported on the next steamer.

Wilmington, Pa., April 26.—A convention of miners has been called for May 3 in Scranton. Action will then be taken on the Mine owners' reply.

NO REASONS FOR PENSIONS

A measure for the pensioning of judges of the probate court in this state is now on its way through the Legislature with prospects, we are sorry to say, of its passage. There have been no very strong arguments advanced for the graft on the part of the state, the principal argument being that because other judges are pensioned probate judges should be, but while this argument may satisfy the advocates of the pension it goes but a little way in appeasing the feelings of the tax payers who are opposed to civil pensions of all kinds, and who cannot see why judges of a probate court or any other court should be singled out for this special favor, says the Newburyport News.

There are probate judges in the states who today make more in private practice than they do in presiding over their courts, and we should have the spectacle under this law, if it passes, of the state paying a pension to men, whose income in the profession would average very much more than that of the people who were taxed to pay the graft.

There is no reason for the success of the measure. It certainly is not reason enough to pension probate judges because some other judges enjoy a pension now. To effect a bad piece of legislation because some previous general court has seen fit to take such a course is unwise. If judges are pensioned in this way we can see no valid argument by and by for not pensioning other court attaches, and then gradually this pension scheme spreads until we have a pensioned class that is a burden upon the people who have all their lives earned less money than the men who have been thus pensioned. If every tax payer and voter would have this dangerous tendency impressed upon his mind and make his influence manifest upon his representative we should have less of this sort of legislation. It is very insidious, and needs some strenuous work to counteract it.

FRENCH TURMOIL

It is to be hoped that the recent reports that have come from Paris regarding the political and social conditions, which are described as leading upon a revolution, are more gloomy than the facts actually warrant. If all that is said of the situation is true, the French government has for some time been playing with the elements of discord and disruption, for the sake of preserving prestige with two classes, the militant churchmen on the one hand and the militant labor unions on the other. It is true that the ordinary news dispatches that have come forth have shown but little sign of such a state of affairs as that described at length in recent communications, but this may be due to the censorship, which, it is charged, the government has undertaken to maintain, says the Washington Star.

HELP ASKED FROM LABOR BODIES

Secretary D. W. Finn of the New Hampshire Federation of Labor sent a communication to all the central bodies in the state suggesting that they at once take means to raise funds to help alleviate the suffering and destitution of the people of San Francisco, and that all monies be forwarded to Mayer Schmidt, San Francisco, Cal.

A LORD PROPOS

BY COSMO HAMILTON

Lancing stands sheepishly, his fingers in and out of his pocket, looking at Julie. She looks at him with the face of spring, leans mantleboard, intently studying a card, good-looking only known many thousands miles after the war.

Lancing (finding a voice that isn't a bit like his own)—It's delightful weather—for the time of year.

Julie—Is it? There are frogs galore and mud in lumps, and when it rains it rains.

Julie—O yes, quite delightful. Lancing (catching the note of sarcasm)—I said for the time of year.

Julie—Yes, I noted that. Won't you sit down, Lord Lancing?

Lancing—Not yet, if you don't mind. I can't, as a matter of fact. There's something on my mind which—

Julie (gravely)—I didn't ask you to sit on your head.

Lancing—Ha! ha! No, but under the circumstances—will you let me come straight to the point, as a great favor?

Julie (sitting down and putting her tiny feet on the fender)—Why, yes, certainly. Having been in the city now nearly 12 weeks, and having met a good many of your countrymen, I know that you haven't half exhausted all the interesting remarks you have to make about the weather.

Lancing (looking at his boots)—I have just proposed to your dear mother, Miss Julie.

Julie (sitting up suddenly)—What? Lancing (jumping)—What I mean is, I have just proposed to your dear mother for you.

Julie (subsiding)—O!

Lancing (lamely)—Do you mind much?

Julie—I am given to understand that this is a free country. Lord Lancing, and, of course, I believe it. I guess I can't prevent you from enlivening mamma with all sorts of light topics of conversation, anyway.

Lancing—Do you call proposing for you a light topic, then?

Julie (with a laugh)—See here, whatever mamma may have replied, I absolutely refuse to have it described as a heavy one!

Lancing—You're in great form this afternoon, Miss Julie.

Julie—What did mamma say?

Lancing—Nothing—at least nothing that mattered.

Julie (pensively)—She is no dialoguist.

Lancing—I didn't mean to imply that. Oh, look here, Julie, do help me out of this.

Julie (with a natural touch of heat)—Help you out? Well!

Lancing—I never proposed to a girl before.

Julie—That's very evident.

Lancing—Well, then, give me a lead. Don't look at me so as to throw me into a whirl of fright. Just turn your head slightly away and cross-examine me gently. Drag out of me the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Put me through the most searching examination.

Julie—You haven't evidently asked yourself whether all this won't be wasting my time.

Lancing (dismayed)—Wasting your time?

Julie—I mean how do you know that I want to search and riddle and cross-examine?

Lancing—How do you mean?

Julie—This how. I'm sure it's very kind of you to want to keep me bright and busy on a dull afternoon by suggesting a game of law courts—

Lancing—Game!

Julie—But, honestly, perhaps I would rather know nothing that you cannot tell me yourself.

Lancing (humbly)—You mean that you are not in the least interested.

Julie—No, I don't, and I don't wish you to put into my mouth things I don't wish to taste.

Lancing—I beg your pardon, but what, in heaven's name, do you mean? Can't you hear what a state I am in? The banging of my heart is worse than a drum.

Julie (laughing and giving a sigh)—O you make me very nearly very angry, Lord Lancing. Just as though I want to go through the performance of imitating one of your gentlemen with clean-shaven faces and bullying ways when all you have to say can be said inside in eight words.

Lancing—Can it? How, what are they?

Julie—Say, am I proposing, or are you?

Lancing—Don't waste time by asking silly questions. Julie, for pity's sake, tell me what I ought to say. Good Lord, wait a second. (He hears some words over silently.) By gad, I believe I've—I have (he bends over her chair). Julie, I love you; will you be my wife?

Julie—My answer is—

Lancing (at the top of his voice, holding out his arms)—Yes?

Julie—In once, but don't do that. Some one will see!

Lancing (holding her tight)—I don't care a tuppenny cuss who sees.

Julie (with a ripple of laughter)—Nor do I.

And will you believe that she snuggles into his arms and actually holds up her face to be kissed? Of course you will. You knew she would from the first. It's more than I did, though.

Islanders Leaving.

Owing to the emigration of persons during the past three months, St. Pierre and Miquelon is now a total population of 6,500, the authorities are beginning to feel that the colony is threatened with extinction. The rush of emigration is to continue. The poorer inhabitants advocate the transfer of St. Pierre from France to Newfoundland.

Father Aeb, a noted miser, has died at Berne, age 70. When he was 22 a fortune was bequeathed him, and from being a spendthrift he at once became a miser. THE THEATRICAL FOLK

An Elaborate Production

One of the most important events of the Spring theatrical season will be the appearance of Annie Russell in Paul Kester's latest comedy, "Friend Hamrah" at Music Hall next Monday evening. Miss Russell has just closed a six months' engagement at the Court Theatre, London, in Bernard Shaw's play "Major Barbara" and during the run of that piece she signed a three years' contract with Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper. Dainty Annie Russell is too well known in this country to require more than the name of the play with which she is associated, to make the prediction of her success a reasonable certainty. "Friend Hamrah" is a story of simple Quaker life in rural England during the days of George III., into which one George Tudor comes who wins the heart and hand of Hannah, and elopes with her without telling her he is heir to the throne. This production will undoubtedly be an elaborate one, as Miss Russell's managers intend that this shall be the inaugural attraction for their new Astor Theatre next fall. The more prominent people in the cast are Oswald Yorke, George Woodard, Ida Vernon, Ida Waterman and Frances Stever.

Annie Russell

"As Ye Sow"

"As Ye Sow," a new play by Rev. John Snyder, is to be seen in this city, with William A. Brady and Joseph R. Gims as the producers.

These managers have such faith in the work of the clergyman-dramatist that they have given him play an elaborate production. The drama has four acts and five scenes.

A company in which numerous actors of wide reputation and much technical skill take part will interpret the work of the parson-playwright.

Mr. Snyder's play tells the story of two brothers whose lives are as far apart as the poles, in purpose and accomplishment. One of the men is a clergyman, the other a sailor.

One point of interest unites the brothers in life, the love of a woman. She is the wife of one, but loves the other.

The working out of the problem fills the four acts of the play which, however, is plentifully supplied with comedy, and which has two or three sub-plots to which interest attaches.

This play has met with tremendous success in Boston, New York and Chicago, where the critics in each city speak in the highest terms of praise of this minister's play. The success of the same has been something phenomenal and hitherto unheard of in the annals of dramatic amusements of America.

"Yankee Circus on Mars"

As a climax to the theatrical performances of the season in Boston, Manager Lawrence McNulty, in cooperation with Thompson and Dundy, will next Monday night present at the Boston Theatre the first of the limited great New York Hippodrome shows, "A Yankee Circus on Mars." Theatrical and dramatic, this is an really a combination of spectacle, circus, pantomime, drama, musical comedy and specialty performances and which offers about everything conceivable in the way of a twentieth century entertainment, will be on view at the big New England playhouse every afternoon and evening. The matinees will begin promptly at two o'clock and evening performances at eight in order to accommodate this aggregation and the massive production itself, extensive attractions have been undertaken on the Boston Theatre stage which, with the exception of the Auditorium in Chicago and the Grand Opera House in Philadelphia, not to mention the New York Hippodrome itself, is the only one in this country big enough for the undertaking.

Briefly described, "A Yankee Circus on Mars" is in two acts, the first of which is located on this terrestrial sphere and the other on the war planet. The opening scene discloses a traveling circus of the familiar type picturesquely camped on a village "lot." An attraction for the night is followed by a Sheriff's sale of steamers by which it would be taken to Sacramento. For days these wagons went around collecting food. Some gave bread and meat, others gave tea and cake, but everybody gave something. Steamer after steamer was loaded with food for the starving people.

The next move was the best of all. The authorities of San Francisco invited all the people of Sacramento, many thousands, to come to San Francisco, free of expense, on the steamers on their return trips. Every available hall, boarding house, hotel and other place was hired by the city to accommodate the visitors, and many persons donated the use of their apartments for that purpose. For many weeks (five or six, I think) these thousands of homeless, starving people were sheltered, put to bed every night, warmed, clothed and fed, and doctored when sick, by the citizens of San Francisco.

I visited Sacramento during the time it was submerged. While there, I saw a large schooner with all sails set and crowded with excursionists sailing about the street. The steamer "Tem" made regular trips about town every day. One day "when the tide went down" she was left back in the city, high and dry, where she is now, I suppose.

The sufferers, during the time they were entertained in San Francisco were not treated as objects of charity, but respected and pitied for their misfortune. While so much has been said about San Francisco and her people within the past week, no allusion whatever has been made to those Christian acts of hers so long ago, and no one seems to have thought of them, but I think it is very opportune to mention them at this time.

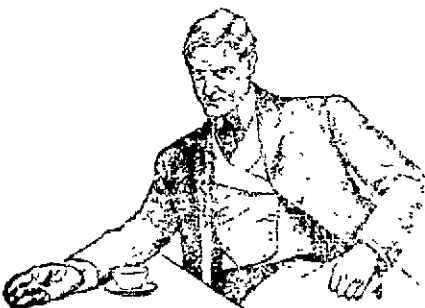

I omitted to say that when the flood was over, all these people were returned to their homes free of expense.

San Francisco made no mistake when she "cast her bread upon the waters" so many years ago.

Half Sick People

Just sick enough to feel heavy-headed, lazy and listless, to have no appetite, to sleep badly, tossing and tumbling about restlessly, and to feel all the morning from one side to the other, restless and nervous, and to have what you eat feel like lead in your stomach; not sick enough to take to bed or call a doctor, but just sick enough to not know what to do.

Ninety-nine times out of one hundred these symptoms are all caused by the stomach, bowels, liver and digestive organs. Just think for a moment what habitual neglect of the stomach, bowels and liver means; sickness instead of health, nervous and wakeful instead of restful and cheerful. Now, all this can be remedied in one night.

SMITH'S Pineapple and Butternut PILLS

Nature's Laxative will always work wonders. They will cleanse the functions of the liver and bowels, immediately unload the congestion, cure the constipation and cleanse the blood of impurities. Anyone suffering from chronic constipation, indigestion, sick headache, or liver complaint, can tone up the entire system, elevate the spirits and again make life really well worth living by a single week's use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills. They will give you the appetite of youth, your food will agree with you, and sound, refreshing sleep will visit upon you. They are Nature's laxative, entirely different from anything you have ever taken before. These little Vegetable Pills

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 1906.

THE RELIEF FUND

Entertainments of every sort any portion of the proceeds of which are to be added to the San Francisco fund should be generously patronized. In no way can sympathy for the distressed people of the Pacific coast be more effectively displayed.

Portsmouth has always been known as a charitably inclined city. Just now, there is especial reason for donations as large as organizations and individuals can afford.

It is to a certain extent regrettable that all the contributions from Portsmouth and vicinity cannot be forwarded together as parts of one common fund. In this way, Portsmouth might secure greater credit. Perhaps, however, the glory of cities, towns and individuals is of slight importance in a crisis like that of the present and whether Portsmouth as a municipality is credited with all or only half its contributions may be of little consequence. Nevertheless, every good citizen naturally wants the nation to know that Portsmouth has done its share.

THE MEN OF THE SOUTHERY

A most noble example has been set by the prisoners on the United States receiving ship Southern at Portsmouth navy yard by their generous contributions to the San Francisco relief fund. They have displayed a spirit which should inspire everyone to do all possible to aid the unfortunate people of the California city.

The men on the Southern are called prisoners, but nearly all of them are confined for trifling offenses, such as overstaying leave and the like. They are most certainly not criminals in any sense of the word.

Too much praise can hardly be given the Southern men for the liberality they have shown and The Herald feels that Portsmouth people should not be slow in demonstrating their appreciation.

HOBSON

People who believe that former Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson of the navy was unjustly treated were gratified to learn that he had received a congressional nomination. Those who have followed his career are confident that, if elected, he will make an able representative of the people in the national legislative halls.

There are many who can never be convinced that Capt. Hobson was given a square deal. They feel that the navy lost a valuable officer when he was placed on the retired list. These people would be jubilant if he should again enter the public service, even though it were in the civil instead of the naval branch.

Capt. Hobson's record for gallantry has naturally made him a popular hero and it cannot be denied that the navy has need of brave young officers such as he.

the rough-shod wheels were deep and everlasting ruts in the stone pavements. Let not so many people, in a month of thirty days, entered or left any of the old walled capitals of Greece, or Rome, or India (that, like our modern populous centers, depended for their very life on the outside country) as now, between sunrise and sunset, hurt themselves back and forth, in and out of New York alone. Transportation is the problem; the ways along which people can move and the means to move them, are the great questions of the hour, and all roads lead to town.

Our Modern Days

We have tunneled beneath the ground and the river; we have thrown great flying arches over our intervening waterways; we have networked the surrounding country with lines of humming trolleys, and the ferry boats swing with the regularity of pendulums, from pier to pier. Incoming of going armies of men spend large fractions of their lives upon the road. They have traveled many times the distance to the moon and back. The faithful servants, electricity and steam, fetch them in and out. The same unvarying number of footsteps have brought them to their homes and offices. The same unvarying revolutions of whirling wheels have carried them from the journey's beginning to its end. Far above the level of the roofs of the dwelling houses, we have built great cities, peopled by transients. The metropolis is like the feeding ground of great migratory flocks who come in the morning to pick up their living, to fill their mouths and fill their pouches, and retire at night to their home nests and roosting places.—James Barnes in the May Metropolitan Magazine.

CAUGHT AT RANDOM

That improved train service between Concord, Manchester, Nashua and the seacoast would prove profitable for the Boston and Maine railroad is the firm conviction of all who have looked into the matter.

Two trains each way daily during the entire Summer would in less than one season prove inadequate to handle the people.

Said a well known business man: "Manchester is without a watering place since Massabesic has been taken away. The coast ought to be less than an hour's ride for people from up the state and with season tickets things would hum."

"Speaking of trains there is a chance for improvement all along the line and it is a lasting disgrace that better service is not maintained."

Former County Solicitor John W. Kelley was a conspicuous figure in a crowd of Concord politicians last week and the Eagle Hotel had the appearance of the night before a Republican state convention. "Jack" made a hit with the crowd when he related his experience before the grand jury some time ago when a woman from up the state pleaded with him that her brother ought to be discharged because he had married an Irish girl and the husband had a right to beat her.

This city and the surrounding resorts will be the Mecca of politicians the coming Summer and from all accounts all the leaders will make Portsmouth their headquarters. The cottages at Rye are in great demand and it is hinted that two members of the New Hampshire congressional delegation will pass the season there.

HACKETT MURDER

Case Is To Revived After Many Days

AUTHORITIES AT LAST SPURRED TO ACTION

Sheriff's Deputies Were Rounding Up Witnesses Yesterday

OFFICIALS HAVE NOT GIVEN UP SOLVING OF MYSTERY

Augusta, Me., April 26.—The Mattie Hackett murder mystery, which for many months has been lying dormant, is to be reopened Friday, when the grand jury will begin a fresh investigation, based on new evidence which County Attorney Leigh has been working on and sifting since last December. Witnesses were being summoned today.

Not since the Hackett girl was found dead by the roadside in August with the murderous string that caused her death sunk deep into the flesh about her throat, has County Attorney Leigh or Sheriff Ham admitted the possibility of the murderer or murderers escaping justice.

Quietly they have worked, accumulating bit by bit the evidence which they now propose to present to the grand jury. Both are reticent as to what this evidence is, but each expresses complete confidence that an indictment will be returned when it is presented to the grand jury.

The first intimation that reached the public that the county attorney's office was contemplating another effort to locate the girl's murderers came yesterday when Sheriff Ham called his deputies together and, aiming them with summonses, sent them into Readfield and nearby towns to round up the witnesses who are needed.

CHAT ABOUT BOOKS

Handsomely bound and finely printed is the fifth edition, revised and enlarged, of "Mental Healing," by Leander Edmund Whipple, from the press of the Metaphysical Publishing Company, New York. Mr. Whipple is a recognized authority on the subject he has chosen and his work is of great value to all who are interested in mental healing. It is one of the most comprehensive books sold at a moderate price we have ever seen. It is likely to prove invaluable to students of the subject.

The two latest numbers of the Old South Leaflets, published at the Old South Church, Boston, are of especial value and interest. They are selections from the works of Franklin, the famous essays, "Plan for Western Colonies," and "On War and Peace." The pamphlets are particularly timely in this year of revival of interest in Franklin.

Leon H. Vincent's "American Literature—Masters," published by Houghton, Mifflin and Company, Boston, is a charming volume. It covers the period of American literary activity from the appearance of Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History of New York" to the days of Donald G. Mitchell. Nineteen authors have each a chapter to themselves, the list including Irving, Bryant, Cooper, Longfellow, Poe, Bancroft, Prescott, Hawthorne, Whittier, Holmes, Motley, Emerson, Thoreau, Taylor, Mitchell, Curtis, Lowell, Whitman and Parkman. The life and character of the writers are dwelt upon and their works are criticized. Mr. Vincent's style is graceful and pleasing.

Charles Frederic Holder knows more about fish and fishing than any other American writer now living and his new book, "The Log of a Sea Angler" is one of his best. It is a volume which every angler will treasure and read again and again. Some exciting adventures are related in its pages, everyone an actual occurrence. It takes a bold man to try to lure from the depths the shark, the moray eel and the devil fish, but this is what Mr. Holder does. "The Log of a Deep Sea Fisherman" tells of his experiences. Houghton, Mifflin and Company publish the book.

OF REMARKABLE BEAUTY

Are Engravings Sent Out By Southern Pacific Railway

The Southern Pacific railway has sent to The Herald two plate engravings of remarkable beauty, pictures which if framed, would be worthy a place anywhere.

The other shows Mount Shasta, California, a lordly snow capped peak 14,444 feet above the level of the sea. Muir's Peak, otherwise Black Butte, is also shown.

The Southern Pacific railway deserves the gratitude of all who receive these splendid pictures.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE

Made By Officers West And Kelly At An Early Hour This Morning

A telephone message received from the Haverhill, Mass., police at the local police headquarters at about one o'clock this morning, resulted in the capture a short time later by Officers West and Kelly at DeWitt Hotel of Abraham Midler, a Hebrew, age about fifty, charged with the larceny of $560 from two young Jews, in the above named city yesterday.

Midler was seen on an electric car by Officer West as the latter came down town early in the evening, and it is supposed that he came all the way from Haverhill by trolley.

Nearly all of the stolen money was found beneath Midler's shirt, when arrested.

tical demonstrations were given.

Photographs and radiographs shown, and tubes of costly radium passed about among the audience.

Radiographs of the hands of several people in the audience were taken. This was the first opportunity given the general public in this city to see a demonstration of the X-ray and of the qualities of radium and the educational value of the lecture, aside from its curious interest, made it especially important. Dr. Towle is one of the best informed men in the state on the subject and he possesses the ability of imparting to others in a manner which makes a lasting impression those things which he himself knows.

The lecture was given under the auspices of Strawberry Bank Grange and refreshments were served to the guests by the members of that organization.

THE FIRST FATALITY

Reported In Case of New Hampshire People

IN SAN FRANCISCO WHEN EARTHQUAKE CAME

Nashua, April 27.—The first definite news of the death of a New Hampshire visitor in San Francisco has been received here. Mrs. Harry I. Morse was instantly killed by the falling of a hotel in which she and her husband were guests. Her husband was very seriously injured.

Mr. Morse is now at the house of a nurse, Mrs. Eudora E. Moore, at Duncan's Mills, ten miles from San Francisco. His condition is serious and he is the most of the time. This information was contained in a letter from the nurse to the father of the injured man, Frank P. Morse.

Plymouth Man Hurt

Plymouth, April 27—Alfred Stanley, superintendent of the Livermore Falls Pulp Company here, is one of those injured in the California earthquake. Both bones of one leg below the knee were broken. The injury will prevent his return home for several weeks.

QUICKLY RETURNED

Message Enclosed in Bottle Comes Back Very Speedily

A well known Portsmouth man who recently made a trip to the South has a good story to tell.

When off the Carolina coast on a Merchants' and Manufacturers' Transportation Company steamer, for a joke he wrote a note telling of his trip and threw it into the sea.

On his arrival home he was surprised to find a letter with his note attached awaiting him. The bottle was picked up by some lifesavers off the Carolina coast on Easter Monday and they immediately wrote to the Portsmouth man telling him where they found his missive and what a lonesome Easter Sunday they had passed on that coast.

The correspondence has not yet ended and the man who made the trip will again be heard from by the Southern lifesaving crew.

SURPRISED FRIENDS

Marriage of Mr. Haines and Miss Hodgkins Here

A dispatch from Rockland, Me., dated Thursday, says

Arthur P. Haines and Miss Mabelle G. Hodgkins, both prominent in society here, were married in Portsmouth, N. H., this noon, by Rev. G. W. Gile of the Baptist Church.

Their plans were made very secretly and the first news of the event came to Rockland friends in the form of a telegram from the couple. They are now on a week's honeymoon trip to Boston and on returning will reside on Middle street.

The bride is the daughter of Albert W. Hodgkins, a well known Maine Central railroad conductor. She graduated from the High School in 1894 and has taught in the public schools of this city ten years. She is a member of the First Baptist Choral Association.

The groom is connected with a leading business house here.

OBSEQUIES

The funeral of Henry W. Montgomery was held at half-past two o'clock this (Friday) afternoon, from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Montgomery on Cabot street. Many friends paid the last honors. The service was conducted by Rev. George W. Gile. Interment was in Sagamore cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker H. W. Nickerson.

The body of Emily M. Locke arrived in this city on the 2.45 train on Thursday afternoon and was buried in Harmony Grove cemetery by Undertaker O. W. Ham.

RAILROAD NOTES

A Portland shifter passed through here today (Friday) on her way to the Boston repair shops.

Pay day at this station today (Friday).

The Boston and Maine road department is getting gravel from the Hampton pit for repairs and grading to be done for the town of North Hampton on the Little River road.

The Order of Railway Clerks held a meeting on Thursday evening and acted on one application received from North Berwick.

A new side track is being put in at the North Hampton station, to be known as the milk track from which H. P. Hood and Sons will do their shipping.

Benjamin Miller, who has been away from his duty as switchman for the last six months owing to illness, will resume work on Monday next. He will move his household goods from Kittery and take up a residence in the John Mills house on Maplewood avenue.

Trouble Coming.

"May I ask what you call these?" asked the British visitor, turning to the man sitting next to him at the hotel table.

"The cook, I believe," answered the other, "calls them buckwheat cakes." The visitor tasted them and took out his notebook.

He had found material for a whole chapter in his forthcoming work on America.—Chicago Tribune.

Necessary Preparation.

"Laura," said Mr. Ferguson, "what kind of a looking girl is this Miss Wilmerson who is coming to visit you next week?"

"She's the handsomest girl of my acquaintance," answered Mrs. Ferguson. "Well that means that I've got to take that cracked mirror off the bureau and put a new one in its place."—Chicago Tribune.

The Coming Aristocracy.

Visitor (in penitentiary)—Who is that distinguished looking convict?

Warden—He is known here as No. 1,147.

"He seems to hold himself aloof from his fellows."

"Yes; you can hardly expect him to associate with the common herd. His trial cost the state $200,000."—Chicago Tribune.

Establishing a Basis.

Tufford Knutt (at the kitchen door)—Hev ye got a pipe organ that needs tunin', ma'am?

Woman of the House—Pipe organ? Of course not!

"Well, ma'am, seein' I hain't got no chanst to earn a meal, would ye mind jest givin' me a bite of somethin' to eat?"—Chicago Tribune.

Obituary Slander.

Wilhelm Schmied, of Unterhalb, Germany, who instructed a stonemason to inscribe on his wife's tombstone the words: "Here rests the body of Marie Schmied, who died, after much suffering, from the effects of unscrupulous treatment," has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment for slandering the doctor in the case.

How a Woman Reasons.

A woman never loses interest in the man she might have married, says the Council Grove (Kan.) Guard. If he succeeds she prides herself on the fact that she could have had him. If he fails she is equally proud of the fact that she had foresight enough to turn him down.

Returned to Punishment.

A man of Cardiff, Wales, was accused of stealing lead from a roof, and broke jail and fled. After he had traveled 26,000 miles he surrendered and was tried on the charge of theft and acquitted. But he was held for trial for escaping from prison.

A GOOD STOMACH

Is To Be Chosen Rather Than Great Riches. F. B. Coleman Will Tell You How to Have One.

We strongly urge any who have the least sign of symptoms of stomach trouble to use Albert's Little Dinner Pill, the English remedy, which since its introduction in America, has promptly taken the lead over all remedies as a perfect cure for stomach disorders. Albert's Little Dinner Pill contains no poison and no harmful drugs or opiates. Mr. H. G. Taylor, 161 Elm St., Boston, Mass., says: "I thank you very much for Albert's Little Dinner Pill. I feel every sufferer from indigestion might receive a Christmas present of Albert's Little Dinner Pill. I think they have got all the stomach troubles beat to a standstill and I would not be without them at any reasonable cost. I suffered for years and this is the only remedy that gave relief. Introduced them to my wife and a all speak very highly of them." Don't suffer with a bad or weak stomach. Try a package of Albert's Little Dinner Pill at our risk, if not satisfied we promptly refund the price. Sold at drug stores 25 cents a package. STILL LIFE MENAGERIE.

Market in Alaska Where Frozen Animal Stand All Winter.

The world's most unique game market is in Fairbanks, Alaska, says the San Francisco Chronicle. If you will take the trouble to examine the latest map of the vast and valuable north-west territory purchased by Uncle Sam from Russia in 1867 you will find that Fairbanks is on the Chena river, in the rich Tanana district, of which it is the thriving metropolis. It lies close to the Arctic circle, and in common with other communities in the valley of the Yukon, has an average mean temperature of about 10 degrees below zero during the months of November, December, January, February and March. At intervals during the long winter season the thermometer goes as low as 75 degrees below the zero mark, but such an excessive temperature is not absolutely necessary for the successful operation of the Fairbanks game market, although it is true, the intensity of the Arctic cold is the chief factor in establishing and maintaining the town's claim to distinction in the item of its game market. It is almost superfluous to suggest that the market, operating as it does only during the months named, is saved the expense of artificial refrigerating apparatus.

Now here is where the novelty begins. Instead of skinning the game and curing up the carcass as in the ordinary way, everyday market, the deer, or the moose, or the bear, as the case may be, is simply stood up on the floor of the market, which is located in one of the principal buildings of the town, and allowed to freeze solidly, or probably it has frozen solidly within 20 minutes after it was killed. The low temperature that continually prevails permits the keeping of game in this shape for months at a stretch, as once the carcass is frozen there is no decay until the freezing weather is over.

One may enter the market and order a bear steak cut from Bruin who has occupied a particular corner in the establishment, looking for all the world as if he were alive, for several months; or a haunch of venison from the deer that has been in another corner for an equally long period; or, perchance, a choice cut of the lordly moose or the kingly caribou that have been making lifeline poses in other sections of the market. Or, if it be a mountain sheep or a goat that the fancy craves, the same opportunity is offered for selection. The animals appear just as they did in life, and the person who visits the place for the first time is apt to imagine himself in a menagerie rather than a market.

The flavor and quality of the game under such conditions is said to be unexcelled. The freezing process and the length of time that is allowed to elapse between the killing and the eating of the animal seem to impart to the flesh a tenderness and a ripeness that is characteristic.

The market attracts attention to its location by placing on the sidewalk before its door, just as the cigar man puts out his wooden Indian, a bear or moose, a stag or some other animal from its stock in trade. Last season the same bear was used for the purpose every day for five months, and was then cut up into steaks that were pronounced to be the most delicious that had ever been eaten in a locality that has been famous for its well-flavored bear steaks.

How Tigers Kill Their Prey.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game, writes an assistant controller of forests at Perth in the London Field. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder, but nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder and when the bull turned his head to give the tiger, he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk broken its neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed by a tiger and found the same thing had happened. There were similar marks on the nose and also on the rear shoulder, which clearly indicated that this animal had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger kill a bullock told me they saw the same thing happen, also that in dragging off a heavy carcass, such as buffalo or bull, he gets most of the weight across his shoulder.

This must be fairly correct as I have often followed a kill, and the marks often indicated that only a portion of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full grown bull which ten men could not move, dragged for two miles by a tiger in heavy jungle, where roots and trees and swamp had to be gone through in no case have I seen the big mangrove tree the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves I must carry a portion of the animal over my shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense; beside, in this country a tiger never faces his prey but attacks him on the flank, unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem very like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small leopard, a tiger will still about ten feet away, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried and each time a tiger has tried to feed up in the cage.

MISTAKEN FOR THE BUTLER.

After a Pleasant Five Minutes There Was an Awful Awakening.

Lord Newton Butler has been amusing his friends by telling the following story: It was a musical "at home" in Belgravia, to which he was invited, and it being a rainy night, he wore his evening dress. The family butler opened the door to him, looked puzzled, and then asked: "Name, please?"

"Lord Newton Butler," was the reply. "Oh, Lord Newton's butler, are you? Come along, old chap, and have a drop of something in the housekeeper's room. They've got a job lot up stairs tonight, and your master ain't come, if you're looking for him."

"With pleasure," said his lordship, who spent a chatty five minutes with the butler over a glass of Burton ale. "Much obliged to you, I'm sure; and I think I'll go and have a look at the 'job lot' in the drawing room." And, to the butler's horror his new acquaintance strode up the stairs and was soon warmly shaking the hand of his hostess.—London Tid-Bits.

The Silver Lining.

Mr. Dobson has lately been suffering from a very bad bout of influenza, but under the circumstances Mrs. Dobson has borne up remarkably.

"Yes," she said cheerfully to a sympathizer, "of course, Josiah has been very bad indeed, poor fellow! But they say that every cloud has a silver lining, and there's no doubt that this one has. He's been coughing and sneezing from morning till night, but you can't think how it amuses the baby; he hasn't been so good for so long a time since he has been born!"—Tid-Bits.

Change Here.

We extremely dislike the greswome but even in a hospital things occur which have in them an element of humor. For instance:

"Strange case upstairs," remarked the house surgeon to the visiting physician. "Boy brought in who insists that he has swallowed two shillings, two halfpence and three farthings; yet he seems as well as ever he was. I confess it puzzles me."

"Ah!" said the physician dryly. "Still if what he says is true, we shall find some change in him before very long."

And as he passed on he mused upon the difficulties in his profession of extracting a fee.—Punch.

Tempered With Mercy.

An English gentleman went to a village in the north of Scotland for a week's fishing on the lochs in the district. He was very unfortunate, having caught nothing in the first five days of his stay. Of course, his hotel bill, a boatman's hire, as well as sundry odd amounts, made the fishing rather expensive. On the last day, however, he killed a nice salmon, and in the course of conversation with the boatman he said: "Donald, do you know that fish has cost me £10?"

"Aweel, sir," replied Donald, who took life very easily, "all things be mixed wi' mercy; it's a blessing ye didna catch any mair!"—The Tatler.

Handy Feat.

Mr. Nolan's description of an acrobatic performance was clear enough to any listener, although his excitement over it led his tongue, as usual, to unfrequented mazes of speech, says the Youth's Companion.

"He was a wonderful man, that man was," said Mr. Nolan to his audience. "You'd see him go up a ladder with the end of it up in the air, and the bottom of it rising on a kind of a sofa pillar, and you'd say, 'There's a man going to his death!'"

"But was he? Not a bit of it! Any man that can get such a foothold on the air with his hands, and be as handy with his feet as a monkey, there's no fear for him!"

Couldn't Trust Him.

After a wordy argument in which neither scored, two Irishmen decided to fight it out. It was agreed that when either said "I've enough" the fight should cease.

After they had been at it about ten minutes one of them fell, and immediately yelled: "Enough! I've enough!"

But his opponent kept on pounding him until a man who was watching them said: "Why don't you let him up? He ain't his own enough!"

"I know he says so," said the victor between punches, "but he's a tip a bit you can't believe a word he says."—Youth's Companion.

Nothing to a Basketful.

A veteran of the civil war used to tell this story of war times. A young Irishman named Thomas Smith was in the company. They had been several days without sighting the enemy, but one morning the rebels surprised them, and the bullets were flying thick and fast.

Tom turned and started to run as fast as his legs could carry him. The captain of his company shouted, "Halt, or I will shoot!"

"Shoot and be d—d," cried Tom; "what's one bullet to a basketful?" New York Tribune.

On Probation.

"I ain't got nuthin' particular 'gin the world now," said the old time convict, "I've jest about decided to stay alone for two or three weeks; if I do does better in that time than I do in a cell I may let her be for good an' all!" Atlanta Constitution.

A DEGRADING POSITION.

For One Who Had Occupied a Position of Prominence.

A well-known artist once engaged upon a sacred picture. A very handsome old model named Smith sat at the head of St. Mark. Artist and model became great friends, but when the picture was painted they lost sight of one another. One day, however, the artist, wandering about the zoological gardens came upon his old model with a broom in his hand, looking very disconsolate. "Hello, Smith," said he, "you don't look very cheery. What are you doing now?" "Well, I ain't doin' much, sir, and that's a fact. I'm engaged in these ere gardens a-cleannin' bout the elephant's stable; a nice occupation for one o' the twelve apostles, ain't it, sir?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

He Heard It.

Topnoody made up his mind to-day that he was not going to be bossed any longer by his wife, so when he went home at noon he stalked in and called out imperiously:

"Mrs. Topnoody, Mrs. Topnoody!" Mrs. T. came out of the kitchen with blood in her eyes and a rolling-pin in her hand.

"Well, sir," she said, "what'll you have?"

Topnoody staggered, but braced up.

"Mrs. Topnoody, I want you to understand, madam,"—and he tapped his breast dramatically—"I am the originator of this establishment."

"Oh, you are, are you? Well, Topnoody, I want you to understand that I"—and she looked dangerous—"am the boiler that will blow up and sling the engineer clear over into the next county. Do you hear the steam escaping, Topnoody?"

Topnoody heard it, and he meekly inquired if there was any assistance he could render in the housework.

"The Modern Reader's Bible."

Shortly after little Margaret, aged four, had been taken to see "Peter Pan" with Maude Adams in the title role, her six-year-old brother undertook to tell her the story of the creation.

"And then, Margaret," said he, "after the Lord had made all the rest of the things, He made a man and called him Adam, and by and by Adam got tired of being alone, and the Lord took one of Adam's ribs from him when he was asleep and made a wife for him as a surprise, and her name was—"

"Oh, I know! I know!" exclaimed little Margaret quickly, "her name was Maude Adams!"—Weekly Exchange.

Why Papa Lost Consciousness.

"If you marry him," said her papa, who was exhibiting symptoms of violent displeasure, "I shall not only have to support him, but I shall have to pay his debts, too."

But the pretty and petulant young thing who was hanging to his coat lapels was not moved by the argument.

"Now, papa," she said, "you know well enough that George has to live, just the same as other men. And, as to his debts, I've heard you say hundreds of times that a man's debts ought to be paid!"—Modern Society.

Mutual Inexperience.

A Frenchman was about to be hanged for a criminal offense; as there was no professional executor for the occasion, the painful duty of carrying out the sentence devolved upon an amateur, who apologized for possible shortcomings to the person principally concerned.

"I hope you will pardon me," said he, "if I put you to any unnecessary inconvenience; but the fact is, I have never hanged any one before."

"Pray, do not mention it," replied the other with the greatest sang froid. "For that matter, I have never been hanged before. We must each do our best."

Wise Girl.

"So she married that awful Jack Reunder? Why, didn't she know that he had been blackballed by every club in town?"

"Yes—that's why she took him. She thought there'd be some chance of keeping him at home evenings!"—Cleveland Leader.

And He Wasn't Hurt.

"Can I recover?" gasped the injured man. "No, I fear not," replied the physician, shaking his head.

"But your wife can," assured the surgeon snarlingly from the other side of the bed.—Houston Post.

The Cuisine.

"I'd like to be in a position to employ a chef," said the epicure. "I don't know," said the dyspeptic. "If the habit of artificial nourishment goes on, what you'll want is not a chef but a chemist!"—Washington Star.

The Retort Courteous.

Gothamite—New York is the pulse of the country.

Reverend—Maybe that is why it has so many beats.—Baltimore American.

Else had eaten three slices of bread and butter and was beginning on the fourth.

"Why, Elsie," said her father, "you are a little pig."

"No, me isn't papa," protested Elsie. "Me a bread an' butter fly!"—Chicago News.

When you hear a little dog barking in the parlor you rarely ever see a goat standing on the front porch.

Answering Abberthy.

Although one of the main characteristics of the famous Dr. Abberthy was the readiness with which he could administer a sharp and witty retort when occasion arose, he was once considerably nonplused by the remark of a medical student.

"What would you do," the doctor asked the student at an examination "if a man was placed in your hands with a broken leg?"

"Set it, sir," was the reply.

"Good, very good; you are a witty young man; and doubtless you can tell me what muscles of the body I would move if I were to kick you as you deserve, for your impertinence?"

"You would put into motion," replied the student, not in the least abashed, "the flexors and extensors of my right arm, for I would forthwith knock you down."—Tid-Bits.

And Enough to Make Him.

He was a long-haired, musical enthusiast, and he was doing his best to make himself agreeable to the master of the house to which he was paying a visit.

"Really, sir," he said, "you should be a happy man! I can imagine nothing more pleasant than the position you hold as the head of such a musical family as yours. It is remarkable! Your younger son is a cornetist, both your daughters pianists, your wife is a harpist, your eldest son is a violinist, your youngest daughter is a flutist, while you—by the way, sir, I do not recollect having heard. What are you?"

"I, my dear Mr. Balfre-Mozart," said the old man wearily, "I am only a person!"—Answers.

The Mean Man.

She was one of five beautiful sisters, and the young man didn't seem to be able to center his affections on any particular one of them.

"Yes," she said shyly, "I have been working in the kitchen all day. Maria thinks it is wonderful the way I have learned to cook. I baked bread and pies to-day, and besides that got the dinner, as it was the cook's day off."

"That is fine," said the young man. "Miss Imogene," he continued, while she tried not to look expectant, "there is a question I want to ask of you, and on your reply will depend much of my future happiness."

"And what is it?" she asked, edging a little nearer to him.

"If I should marry one of your sisters will you make your home with us?"—Exchange.

Everything Worn.

"And you still delay the wedding," sighed the beautiful girl. "My heart is worn out."

"Is that all?" demanded the suitor who was an advocate of procrastination.

"No, the carpet is worn out, the parlor sofa is worn out, ma's hopes are worn out and pa's patience is worn out."

The suitor whistled.

"Well, by gum!" he retorted. "My shoes are worn out coming here every two or three nights!"—Chicago News.

Irrepressible.

"Do you think there is any further reason to be drawn from impotent personal journalism?"

"We needn't be impolite," replied the editor of "Town Whoppers."

"There isn't any law to prevent us from complimenting people, is there?"

"No."

"Well, I imagine most any prominent person would be willing to pay to keep from being complimented in my publication now!"—Washington Star.

With a Pis.

Willie (looking up from his book)—Say, pa, the word "cap" sometimes means "with" doesn't it?

Pa—What nonsense are you talking?

Willie—Well, here's something in this book about a "gallant knight armed cap-a-pie!"—Philadelphia Press.

He Knew the Answer.

The husband of a prominent clubwoman had paused in front of an art store.

A motto, "What is Home Without a Mother!" mutely appealed to him.

"Huh, that's easy!" he muttered. "My family is most of the time!"—Chicago News.

Why It's So.

Simkins—Windham seems to think he knows it all.

Simkins—Well, he's not to blame. Simkins—Not to blame!

Simkins—No. He has no children big enough to ask questions.—Chicago News.

From Bad to Worse.

Reformer—Do you believe in divorce?

Acquaintance—No, sir. They're bad, very bad.

Reformer—What are your reasons for thinking so?

Acquaintance—Why I've had three myself.—Detroit Free Press.

By Her Brother.

The girl on the sofa sighed a soulful sigh.

"Nobody seems to understand me," she said sadly.

"How can they?" queried her big brother, "when you spend two-thirds of your time in front of a mirror trying to make yourself less plain?"—Chicago News.

The man with a big head never has a heart to match.

BELIN'S EXPERIENCE.

When His Music Fell on Deaf Ears.

Among his tours, Kubelik, the famous violinist, recalls the following incident:

"I was once asked to play before the inmates of an insane asylum," he says, "the doctor believing that music was a fine medicine for unbalanced minds. I accordingly accompanied him to the institution, where he introduced me, and said I would favor my hearers with something gay and happy."

"I hadn't intended to do this, but, following his suggestion, I played a brilliant Slav composition, which I hoped would be joyous enough. The crazy folk were all seated about the platform in chairs, and seemed to be intensely interested. As I finished, a very pretty young woman rose and beckoned to me. I thought, artist-like, that she wanted an encore, and so said to the doctor:

"Ask her what she desires."

"He rose to his feet, and was about to question her, when she exclaimed:

"To think of the likes of me being in here and he being at large in the world!"

"That was the last time I ever played in an insane asylum."

Not What He Meant.

The supremacy in English history of Little Prince Edward of Wales is a matter of justifiable pride to his parents and tutors, but, according to a story in the London Telegraph, his knowledge of periods and personages is healthily tempered by the unconscious humor of the average school-boy of eleven years.

He was being examined recently on the time and reign of Henry VII.

"Who was Perkin Warbeck?" he was asked.

"Perkin Warbeck was a pretender," replied the prince. "He pretended to be the son of a king, but he wasn't. He was the son of respectable parents."

What They Said.

It was calling day at the St. Francis. Two ladies in summer silks made their way to the counter in the hotel office, presented their cards to Clerk O'Connell and asked to have them sent to a certain lady who is a permanent guest at the big carav

HIS FAITHFUL WIFE.

"Where is your paper? I have it. You won't mind, dear, will you, if I just look it over while Mary is preparing breakfast? You will have a lot of time to read it when you are on the car."

"Besides, I can read you the things of importance and interest, and that will save your eyes a whole lot. I never did understand before why it was that you were so absorbed in your paper before and during breakfast, but I begin to appreciate now the value of saving time and using it to cultivate your mind."

"Just think, Thumindinger & Co. have a most important sale of tafetas, Panama checks and mohairs, all exclusive models and at greatly reduced prices. Here is one: Panama invisible checks—that is the kind you give me when I ask for money for dresses—are going to be worn extensively this season. I must go downtown to-day and see what they have in the window. I must know what is being worn, even though I cannot wear it."

"Now, I'll just clip these items out so that I'll know just where to go without losing any valuable time. It will be all right, dear, for I read these things to you there will be no necessity of your reading them again."

"Oh, just think! Marks & Downs also have a special sale of imported mohairs, and they have models made up from each pattern, so as to show what they really are. Would you mind pouring me another cup of coffee? And butter a roll for me, that's a good boy."

"Linen suitings—it's a little early, but all I can do anyway is look, and I'm determined to see what they have in Irish poplins, as I haven't a single spring suit to my back, and even though it is February, July is coming, and when you get your vacation and decide to spend it at Atlantic City, then you would be ashamed to death if I didn't have even the simplest and neatest little gowns, especially as they are going to be worn by everyone this year, and the prices are lower now than they will be later, and the skirt made up in a very plain fashion, with 54 box plaits, and the waist with a slight modification of the leg-o-mutton sleeve, only with the puff at the elbow instead of at the wrist, full in the front, and either an embroidered stole effect or else, trimmed with lace, will delight you."

"How pleased I am that you take such an interest in my clothes and advise me what to get!"

"I'll just tear this page out so I can go over it more carefully. There isn't anything on the other side, excepting some old editorials."

"And they have a special sale of groceries, with a demonstration of the five-second fishball. Then I don't want to forget to go and see what they have in the way of Cluny jacks and Venice bandings, as you think either of them would be prettier than embroidery, or else I might use an applique design."

"Why, isn't this dreadful? Here is an old man, 22 years of age, who was followed by another man who demanded his watch and turned on him and struck him down with a heavy, gold-headed walking stick, which broke in three pieces, and held him until the police arrived."

"They think they haven't clew to one of the hold-up men. But wasn't it dreadful to hit him so hard, when he could have told him plainly, but decided, that he couldn't have the watch!"

"If I had my way, I wouldn't let people do you like watermelon with strawberries, ice cream and marshmallow cherries to preserve the color scheme? It must be good. I'll just cut out this recipe for it, and this one of how to fix left-over baked beans with truffles and smoked, goose breast so that when I get time I can try them, for I know you like these little dishes."

"And would you mind, darling, if I just cut out the part containing the society news? I know you won't read it anyway, and I want to see who attended Mrs. McWhorle-Schmierkase's wedding to Baron Von Bratwurst. Besides, here is a complete list of the big pre-Lenten functions, and I'll just take the account of the man who killed eight of his wives by mixing paris green in their cream de menthe."

"There's why, why—there isn't much left, is there, dear? But I have read it all to you, or at least all the important part, and you can glance over the rest when you are on the car."

"Good-by. Now, you needn't throw that paper away and then go and squander money on another simply because I cut out a couple of little recipes so I could make you something you like."

"And, Charlie, dear, don't forget to bring a loaf of bread from the baker's, as I shall be so rushed to-day that I do not think I can find time to get it. Good-by, dear."—N. Y. Sun.

She Hated to Be Corrected.

"Of all the people who provoke me," said a woman on a Westport car to another recently, "the person who is always trying to correct my grammar makes me maddest. At Mrs. Blank's tea the other afternoon I chanced to use the word 'ain't,' and immediately a young woman there took occasion to inform me that the word is a bad one. I was quite mortified, as several other women heard her instructing me."

"Oh, I wouldn't feel badly about that," said the other woman. "By the way," came from the first woman, "you used 'badly' improperly then. 'Badly' is an adverb and can be used properly to modify the verb 'feel' only when you speak of feeling with the fingers or something like that. You should have said, 'I wouldn't feel bad.'"

Then she wondered why the people near-by in the car smiled.—Kansas City Times.

FROM A DEAD FRIEND

"What I don't know about the occult and the esoteric and psychical research would fill the biggest tome that you ever saw in your life," remarked a bluff man from Montana, the major portion of whose life had been spent in quest of pay rock who is in Washington on some mining business. "Moreover, all of the superstition that finds a lodgment in me could be extracted with the aid of a toothpick."

"And yet I had an experience a few weeks ago in Pittsburgh that generated within me a pretty hefty line of thinking. I won't say one way or another, what I think of it, but I'll tell you the story from the beginning, just as it happened."

"Eight or nine years ago I had a prospecting partner named Cole Rigley. We were snooping around the Kootenai country for several months together. We built a little cabin on a small plateau on the slope of one of the hills where we had an idea that we might light upon some assay dirt, and we used to hit out in different directions every morning with our tools returning to the cabin with the setting of the sun, both of us dog tired."

"One August night, a couple of hours after we had both returned to the cabin, a heavy thunderstorm came up. I was in bed, pretty sleepy, when the storm began, but Cole, my partner, was sitting up, reading an old magazine by candlelight."

"The dim light of the candle hurt his eyes when he had been reading for awhile on this night I'm speaking of, so he closed up the magazine and began to talk. I was so dead tired that I didn't feel like talking."

"Jack," Cole said to me, while the lightning was flashing and the thunder rolling over the mountains, "I wonder what kind of times they have up yonder?" nodding in the direction whence proceeded the terrific reverberations.

"Oh, I suppose they have bully times up there, Cole," said I, kind of cross-like. "Lemme alone. I want to get to sleep."

"Cole didn't say anything more, and after a bit I heard him go to the cabin door. He opened the door, probably for the purpose of looking at the superb electrical display over the mountains, and let in a blast of wind that came perilously near lifting the cabin."

"Blame your foot skin!" I shouted to him, "shut the door! D'ye want to have the shack lifted up into the air and set down about 400 miles the other side of—"

"Just then there was a blinding flash of lightning, instantly followed by a terrific peal of thunder."

"I don't know how long the shock put me out, but I do know that when I slowly came to and groped my way to the still open door the storm had died away, all of the clouds had dispersed, the moon was shining brightly—and my poor partner, Cole Rigley, was lying in the doorway, dead as a nail."

"The bolt that had only shocked me had killed him. I buried the poor old chap the next morning, stuck a piece of box at the head of the grave, and painted a line or two on it. Then I quit that section as fast as I could get over the ground."

"Well, I found some pay rock in the Colorado hills a few months later, and since then I've been more or less on velvet."

"About six weeks ago I stopped off at Pittsburgh on my way to New York, to see if I couldn't dig up two or three shaps from that town whom I had known in Denver. I couldn't find any of them, but at my hotel I ran across a commercial traveler I had known out west nearly ten years ago. I hadn't seen him since that time. We had one or two together and then he asked me where I was going to put in the evening. Nowhere in particular I told him."

MIDLER RETURNED

Taken Back To Haverhill By Sergt. Pearson

ACCOMPANIED THE OFFICERS WITHOUT OBJECTION

Story Of Game Worked In The Massachusetts City

TOLD TO REPORTER FOR THIS PAPER AT POLICE STATION

Sergt. H. W. Pearson of the Haverhill police department came here this (Friday) morning for the Haverhill, Abraham Midler, who was arrested by Officers Kelley and West Thursday night.

A Herald reporter in conversation with the Haverhill officer learned that Midler has a bad record and once served time in a Russian prison. "He worked a slick game in Haverhill," the officer said, "which led up to the stealing of the money from his young co-religionists."

"Midler arrived from New York only two days ago and at once went to the residence of Moses and Harry Braun, 22 Beach street. Being an old-time friend of the Brauns he at once told them where they could make some money in horse dealing and prevailed on them to draw some money from the bank.

"Everything was to be on the square as they were to handle the money themselves, Midler acting only as adviser.

"The men took the money from the bank, brought it in a package to their home and put it in a bureau drawer to wait for the time to go to the horse sale.

"Midler knew where the money was placed and by spending a good deal of his own money, he managed to get the people out of the house. Then going quietly to the bureau drawer he took the $500 and put a package of old newspapers of the same size as the money package in its place.

"He arranged to get out of town, sending his dress-suit case to Portsmouth by American Express, himself coming along later by trolley."

Midler made no talk about the matter and quietly accompanied Sergt. Pearson back to Haverhill on the 10:53 train.

Midler, however, calmly asserted his innocence of the offense charged against him.

GIVES $100

Eldredge Brewery Company Makes Donation---Other Contributions

One hundred dollars has been paid to Tax Collector Page for the San Francisco fund by the Eldredge Brewing Company, this being the largest contribution of the past twenty-four hours.

Other contributions are as follows: Court Street Christian Church, $29.25; C. Dwight Hanscom, $5.00; Michael Elie, $5.00; Mary F. Matthews $5.00.

These donations swell the fund in the hands of Mr. Page to $1732.27. Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of this city has voted to contribute $50 and Constitution Lodge of Kittery has appropriated $10. New Hampshire Lodge of Odd Fellows will give $15.

On Thursday evening Portsmouth Council, Knights of Columbus, voted to give $50, to be added to the national Knights of Columbus fund.

James W. Bartlett has sent $50 to the Boston San Francisco fund. The amount contributed in Portsmouth and vicinity now totals $3901.50.

MORE JURORS WANTED

It Is Thought For The Rockingham Junction Case

teen additional jurors will be required from Portsmouth.

The drawings will be made next Tuesday, May 1, and the men selected must report on Monday, May 21.

This probably means that Josepa Gouin and John Doe will not be brought up for trial until the last named date. The new jurors, it is thought, are wanted for the Rockingham Junction murder case, indictments in which have been served on Gouin and his companion.

WILL REPAIR ASPHALT

Men Engaged To Remedy Defects In Street Paving

Mr. O'Brien of the Boston district of the Barber Asphalt Company came to this city today (Friday) and engaged men to repair the asphalt paving.

Work is to be done on Market street and the crack on Market square, extending from the Portsmouth Savings bank building to the North Church, will be filled. Repairs will also be made at various points on Congress and Islington streets.

Some of the paving material already mixed, left over after the work was done last Fall and since stored in the yard of the Portsmouth Machine Company, will be heated and put down in the bad places.

BY LIVE WIRE

George Clough Of Rye Severely Burned While At Work

George Clough of Rye while working on a building in that town this (Friday) forenoon, encountered a live electric light or power wire and his hands and feet were badly burned. He was hurriedly taken to the office of Dr. T. W. Luce and later removed to the Cottage Hospital.

THREE DEGREES CONFERRED ON DOVER CANDIDATES

A stated assembly of Davenport Council, Royal and Select Masters, was held at Masonic Hall on Thursday evening. The gathering was one of the most important held by any local Masonic body for some time.

The council conferred the Royal, Select and Super-Excellent degrees on a large class of candidates of Orphan Council of Dover, who came here on a special train from that city.

The council was favored with a visit from Most Illustrious Harry Morrison Cheney, of Lebanon, grand master of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of the state of New Hampshire, and also had as special guests Most Illustrious Edward S. Crandon of Boston, grand master of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of Massachusetts; Fred E. French, deputy grand master of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of New Hampshire, and Rudolph Creamer, three illustrious master of Council, No. 14, Royal and Select Masters of Rochester.

Horace A. Massey, three illustrious master, had charge of the work and, as he always does, faithfully performed his duty on this occasion. A genuine shore dinner was served and the guests left at midnight for home much pleased with their visit. Cottrell and Walsh were the caterers.
